

CITIZENS' MEETING LAST FOR SUMMER

North Capitol and Eckington Association in Session.

MUCH PAVING NEEDED

Prizes Offered for Neatest and Most Attractive Parkings in Territory of Organization.

After adopting the report of the executive committee, which embraced the recommendations to the District Commissioners for civic improvements to be included in next year's District appropriation bill, the North Capitol and Eckington Citizens' Association, at its meeting in St. Martin's Hall last night, adjourned for the summer to meet again the fourth Monday in September.

Pavements Recommended.

The recommendations for improvements were pavements on Lincoln avenue, from Truxton Circle to S street; pavement on North Capitol street, from T to V streets; pavement on Randolph street west from North Capitol to First street; pavement on Seaton street, west from North Capitol to First street; pavement on Rhode Island avenue, west from North Capitol to First street; pavement on U street, west from North Capitol to First street; appropriation for extension of Emory School; appropriation for truck house and equipment in vicinity of Rhode Island avenue and North Capitol street; appropriation for grading and improving T street from Lincoln avenue to Second street east; condemnation proceedings be instituted for connecting S street from Lincoln avenue to Second street east, so that land between these streets and Randolph Place and T street be acquired for a public park.

Prizes for Attractive Lawns.

The executive committee also recommended that the association offer prizes of $5, $3, and $2 for the neatest and most attractive parkings in its territory. The suggestion met with the hearty approval of the association, and was unanimously adopted. Representatives from the three local papers will act as judges. The awards will be made on August 31.

BIG GARTER SNAKE SETS DANGER SIGNAL

Remarkable Performance of a Reptile on Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 25.—Running at the rate of sixty-five miles an hour near this city, a train of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway, filled with passengers, came to a sudden stop, halted by the red light of a block signal.

After waiting the minute in which a train is supposed to clear the short blocks, the engineer proceeded with caution, expecting a wreck, or at least, a broken rail. When he came to the next signal post the white light was shining bright and clear.

He did not stop to investigate, and, in spite of his fears of a medical examination to determine if he could not distinguish between white and red lights, he reported the occurrence. An inspector was sent at once to the pole, and found the red still showing.

A thorough examination overhead and above ground showed no defect. The inspector finally removed the top of the underground case, which contains the electric connections with the rails.

A garter snake, twenty-two inches long, lay comfortably coiled, its head cushioned on the delicate spring, depressing it so that it made the contact necessary to set the signal at danger.

A second after the snake was discovered, the semaphore dropped to the danger to the clear position, and a white light gleamed from the pole. A reptile had reached the height of its fame and met death in the doing.

MAGFARLAND GOES ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Leaving Washington on Saturday District Commissioner Macfarland will spend a brief vacation in Europe, returning with Mrs. Macfarland in about six weeks. Mrs. Macfarland has been in Italy and Switzerland six months. Mr. Macfarland will make a study of municipal improvements in London, Paris and Berlin to be applied to Washington.

Commissioner West is now in Atlantic City.

Store Your Furniture, Pianos, &c., in the fireproof warehouses of Union Trust Co., where safety is assured. Reasonable rates. Main office, 134 F st.

Purest Ice Cream That's Made is C. & S. Velvet Kind, Try it, Druggists.

Another Big Cut

In Prices in Suits, Coats, Skirts, Rain Coats and Waists. Be wise and buy now.

L. NOOT & SON

736 7th St. N. W.

INDIGESTION

Is practically only a name to those who know the virtues of RED STAR PRESCRIPTION.

It relieves and cures immediately. A physician's prescription.

Try it, Druggists.

Fidelity Medicine Co., Washington, D. C.

AGNES NAGLE WINS SUIT IN BEHALF OF DAUGHTER

MARGUERITE NAGLE,
Nine-Year-Old Daughter of Mrs. Agnes Nagle, Over Whose Paternity the Famous Legal Battle Has Been Fought.

Erie Millionaire Grants His Former Wife a Large Sum.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—After three years' battling in the courts, the now famous case of Agnes D. Nagle against her former husband, Theodore M. Nagle, an Erie millionaire, to establish the parentage of her child, so that it might inherit the Nagle millions, has at last been settled.

This was plainly stated to Judge Belter, in common pleas court No. 1, when he called the Nagle case for a hearing on the support proceedings brought by the wife. None of the attorneys or parties were in court and the fight that meant millions to a child, the peace of mind of a man and the good name of a woman ended as though it were the merest damage suit.

Admission of Paternity in Doubt.

That the suit has actually been settled and that a sum of money between $10,000 and $50,000 has passed hands in the transaction has been admitted, but whether or not Nagle has acknowledged being the father of Mrs. Nagle's child is still in doubt. All during the three years of legal quibbling and fighting he had asserted that he had not been living with Mrs. Nagle for two years prior to the birth of the child.

It was the purpose of Mrs. Nagle to induce the description court to make an order of support upon the millionaire for the benefit of the child and in this way the mother hoped to prove its legitimacy and provide a basis for the claim to the whole of the Nagle millions after Mr. Nagle's death.

No Argument as to Will.

None of the attorneys, including Geo. S. Graham and Dwight M. Lowrey, on the side of the husband, and Samuel Seville, Jr., and Charles H. Edmunds, on the side of the wife, will say whether or not Nagle, in settling this new fortune upon his former wife, demanded from her an agreement that she would not dispute his will after his death—in other words relinquish the child's claim to the Nagle millions.

Mrs. Nagle's Life Story.

The story of Mrs. Nagle's life is an exceptionally sad one. Mr. Nagle, who is the head of the great Nagle boiler and engine works at Erie, first saw her when she was fifteen, and fell in love at first sight, although he was

SPARKING COMEDY AT THE COLUMBIA

"Pink Dominos" Proves an Exceptionally Delightful
Entertainment.

With Miss Dorothy Hammond out of the cast and two new members playing important roles, the Standing and Luckett stock company nevertheless gave last night, at the Columbia Theater, a performance that, from the viewpoint of the audience, is one of the most, if not the most, pleasing entertainments of the present engagement.

James Albergy's adaptation of "Pink Dominos," as presented by Sir Charles Wyndham at the Criterion Theater, London, is the comedy selected for this week. And it is a play that, to quote a gentleman of the company, "carries itself." With a mediocre cast it would still be amusing. As presented last night it proves an irresistible attraction and a guaranteed cure for blues.

The story in brief is the adventures of two wives, who lay a trap for their husbands. Sophia Greythorne (Anna Johnston) entertains a childlike confidence in her spouse, Sir Charles Greythorne (Guy Standing). Lady Maggie Wagstaff (Adelaide Alexander), on the other hand, is at all times prepared to believe the worst of her worse half, Sir Percy Wagstaff (John Mason). At the same time she is perfectly cheerful about it.

To test their lord and masters, they send them anonymous invitations to a bal masque, and arrange meeting places. Both wives are to be dressed in pink dominos, and under the terms of the conspiracy they are to exchange husbands.

The little plan works to perfection and the full development of the comedy comes in the second act when the two couples have private dining rooms at Cremorne Gardens. Under the same hospitable roof is Joskin Tubbs (George Gaston), whose wife (Jeffrey Lewis) has been called out of town by the sickness of a friend. Joskin appeals to Sir Percy to secure him an introduction to a "live one," as it is his first separation from his strong-armed wife in thirty years, and he feels an irresistible impulse to be devilish. He gets one who "sends him along" for a $5 supper, and then disappears.

His nephew Henry (Malcolm Dunlop) is also among those present, in company with Lady Percy's maid, Rebecca (Jessie Busley), who is dressed in a pink domino, which matches exactly those worn by the two wives. With such excellent opportunities for situations it can readily be seen that the action of the play is bound to reach a pretty rapid pace and maintain it to the end.

George Gaston, who the comedy moving in the first act. His clever lines are handled with great skill and from the moment his vigorous better half discovers him surreptitiously glancing over a collection of ballet dancer photographs the spectators are kept in a gale of mirth to the very last curtain. Miss Lewis plays an excellent opposite. Guy Standing and John Mason represent two distinct types of husbands. Standing's, a model of propriety until he can manage to get called away from home by "an urgent telegram," Mr. Mason's, an easy-going man of the world with a decent regard for the opinions of others, and a decided objection to being found out, if he can without too much trouble avoid it. The work of both gentlemen is polished and quite unobtrusive.

Miss Busley has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

Miss Johnston has one of her favorite parts—that of a maid who knows more than her employers suspect. She played her role last night with an intelligence that is delightful to critics. Anna Johnston, who has been playing ingenue roles, is cast for the sentimental, reverendous wife. One would naturally suppose her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill. Miss Alexander's part is a radical departure from her past performance. Her work should suffer by the change. On the contrary, though the part is probably not congenial, she has a most pleasing performance, handling her lines with confidence and skill.

STORM MEETING OF CENTRAL LABOR

Heated Debate on Award of Labor Day Program
Printing.

There was not a dull moment during the three hours' meeting of the Central Labor Union in Typographical Temple last night, and the hour of adjournment came just in time to stop a lively row between a member of the Musicians' Union and a machinist who belongs to the Naval Gun Factory Band. The meeting opened with the presentation of a report from the Labor Day committee awarding the contract for the printing of the Labor Day souvenir programs for 1906 to A. J. Arnold.

Program Printing Award Causes Debate

The report of the committee was not adopted, however, until after a very warm debate, in which some very sharp things were said on both sides. Charges and counter charges were freely made. A letter from R. Emmet O'Brien, one of the three bidders on the work of printing the program, was read, in which O'Brien vigorously protested against the action of the Labor Day committee. He charged that as Arnold was an employee of the Government Printing Office he should not be allowed to compete, and he protested against Arnold as a competitor as being unfair and against the principles upon which the Central Labor Union is founded. The committee which awarded the contract to Arnold said he had offered to pay $1.00 for the privilege of publishing the program.

The Pabst Brewing Company, the delegate from the Bottlers' Union reported, and discharged all non-union men and had filled the vacancies with union men.

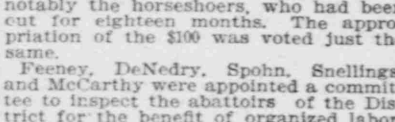

Help for Carriage Workers Opposed.

Some heated discussion followed the motion to appropriate another $100 to aid the striking carriage workers. There was an intimation that the central body was too generous toward the carriage workers, and that other locals had not been treated with such consideration, notably the horseshoers, who had been out for eighteen months. The appropriation of the $100 was voted just the same.

Feeney, DeNedry, Spohn, Snellings, and McCarthy were appointed a committee to inspect the activities of the District for the benefit of organized labor. A committee was also appointed to see that the contracts with the management of the local packing houses for the local Butchers' Union.

The Best Dessert of All.

C. & S. Pure Cream Ice Cream, Druggists.

Before making that trip don't forget to get LITHOLIN Waterproof Linen Collars and Cuffs.

They're just like other linen collars, only waterproof. Wash them with a wet rag or sponge and they look as fresh as new. At collar shops, or of us. Collars 25 cents. Cuffs 50 cents.

POSNER'S 923 Penna. Avenue
We guarantee what we sell and refund the money on demand.

Serges at $10

That are easily worth $13.50

The prices we quote here under quote by far the figures that prevail generally.

The Serge Suit we offer at $10 illustrates the values. Fabric guaranteed for quality and fast color—made up in single and double breasted models in the most approved of the prevailing styles.

$8 PANAMAS $4.50

Finely Woven One-piece Hats, in square crown and telescope shapes. FREE—a fancy band, worth 50c.

POSNER'S 923 Pa. Avenue

COAL PRICES DROP

Take Advantage of Big Reduction
And Buy From Johnson Bros.

1312 F Street N. W.

GREAT REBUILDING FURNITURE SALE

AT JACKSON BROS.

915 to 925 SEVENTH ST.

E. E. TABLETS

For Constipation and Stomach Trouble. 12 doses, 5 cents.

O'Donnell's Drug Stores,

804 F st.—Third st. and Pa. ave. se.—234 and M.

Wash 9⁷/₈c goods

Worth twice, and some nearly three times as much

Now, if ever, is the time to buy Wash Goods. These values and prices are not to be duplicated elsewhere, and goods like these of the daintiest patterns, prettiest weaves, and latest designs, are attractive bargains at the original prices.

One entire booth in the center of the store will be devoted to these goods tomorrow.

Imported crystal Grenadines, exceedingly cool and comfortable for summer wear, in pink, black and white stripes; regular 25c a yard goods. Tomorrow—9 ⁷ / ₈ c	40-inch Silk Mull, part silk; will not curl in cutting; in cream, light blue, pink, and black. Regular 25c value. Tomorrow, a yard—9 ⁷ / ₈ c	Silk Finished Basket Weave Voile, a pure summer fabric, in white ground with black figures and polka dots. Regular 15c value, for a yard—9 ⁷ / ₈ c	22-inch Chambray in light blue. Absolutely fast color, an ideal fabric for a shirt waist suit. Value, a yard, 15c. Special—9 ⁷ / ₈ c
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

36-inch percale 12¹/₂c a yard

The most popular material for making the Peter Pan Suits so greatly in favor at present.

Also Batiste in coin spots, and other spot effects, and ring designs. Special for tomorrow, a yard—12¹/₂c.

Wash Goods Department—First Floor—S. KANN, SONS & CO.

Fill all the odd corners of your vacation trunk with these

Underprice handkerchiefs

Cheap enough at sale prices to fill the entire trunk; and no matter how many you take, you'll not have too many. Wonderful how many one can lose in a day. Better take these than your finest ones.

20 DIFFERENT STYLES

Women's size. Imported Swiss with embroidery borders, and hemstitched, all new designs, worth double the sale price. Choice each—10c

Women's pure linen Initial Handkerchiefs, letter and wreath in corner, hand embroidered, hemstitched and laundered, very nice and sheer. 3 for 25c; each—10c

Plain Irish Linen Handkerchiefs, all hemstitched; hems in several widths; these are factory samples, and worth up to 25c each. While they last choice, each—12¹/₂c

ALL SIZES

Women's white oxfords

One fashion authority has said that with a white dress one MUST HAVE WHITE SHOES or be altogether out of style. White oxfords are decidedly more popular than ever this year and at advertised prices within reach of almost any pocketbook.

Two special lots: $1.50 and $2.00

In plain toes or tipped-covered or plain natural leather heels—in regular oxford styles or Bluchers; with large eyelets or small; large ribbon ties or small laces; hand turned soles. Exceptionally good. These special prices tomorrow.

Children's white bluchers

$1.19 and $1.69 a pair

In Blucher patterns only, made of the best Sea Island Duck, with natural leather heels, large eyelets, and ribbon ties. Hand welt soles. In all sizes, nothing better made.

The latest book sensation

Mary Johnston's great book

"TO HAVE AND TO HOLD"

Never before possible to get under $1.00, and frequently impossible to get at that price because of exhausted editions, is here in the latest limited cloth-bound edition.

Special introductory price, a copy, . . . 39c

Baby Mine

Every mother feels a great dread of the pain and danger attendant upon the most critical period of her life. Becoming a mother should be a source of joy to all, but the suffering and danger incident to the ordeal makes its anticipation one of misery. Mother's Friend is the only remedy which relieves women of the great pain and danger of maternity; this hour which is dreaded as woman's severest trial is not only made painless, but all the danger is avoided by its use. Those who use this remedy are no longer despondent or gloomy; nervousness, nausea and other distressing conditions are overcome, the system is made ready for the coming event, and the serious accidents so common to the critical hour are obviated by the use of Mother's Friend. "It is worth its weight in gold," says many who have used it. $1.00 per bottle at drug stores. Book containing valuable information of interest to all women, will be sent to any address free upon application to GRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.

Mother's Friend

GRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.

CAPABLE STENOGRAPHERS.

Do you need a stenographer—or, if you are a stenographer, do you want a position?

Times Want Ads are the connecting links between employer and employee—between opportunity and yourself.

Capable men and women are daily securing positions in which their abilities are recognized by liberal compensation through reading Times Want Ads.

125,000 people read these pages every day—talk to them.

Times Want Ads Bring Results